

Thank you for allowing me to comment on these proposals.

Let me start by saying I love KLOVE and listen to it all the time. I support it financially and prayerfully. I don't have to worry about the content or have to deal with commercials. I am uplifted and blessed by tuning in.

If these proposed changes take place I won't listen to radio. Some of the proposed regulations that I disagree with are:

A committee to determine content – if there was a satanist on the committee they would be in direct opposition to the stations goals and try to subvert them by dictating content.

Mandatory relocation would put a financial burden that is unwarranted, it works already why break it.

Equal access time – Our society values diversity and to maintain it requires that each voice not be impinged on by watering it down or subverting the message by means of requiring specific proposing of dissenting views. Those views are already available through numerous other conduits. All one need do is just change the station and listen to the other views.

Staffing requirements – All industry benefits from automation, that is the cornerstone of American business. To mandate that a live body is always on site is to add an unnecessary cost that has no actual value.

On the reporting requirements – We already have public television and public radio stations that provide the necessary outlets for the sectors of persons that are being addressed in this portion of the proposal to air their views and insure adequate coverage of other views etc. If you require all stations to be alike then we would only end up with 1 station, the one the government wants and not the one the people have chosen through Freedom of Choice.

On the Licensing – If you already make determinations on pornography standards based on local standards why would you take the licensing determination out of the hands of a more local body and give it to the FCC?

I believe that you will make the best decision that benefits the public and that you won't infringe our rights as Americans. Thank you for your service on our behalf.

Sincerely,

Melinda Conrad
